CDFI CERTIFICATION

Quontic Bank is a US Treasury certified Community Development Financial Institution as defined in 12 C.F.R. 1805.104 as per notice of certification dated June 16, 2015, Certification #151CE013880.

CDFI EXEMPTION

Under applicable law, a loan originated by a CDFI is exempt from the Ability-to-Repay ("ATR") requirements set forth in Section 1411 of Dodd-Frank Act and Regulation Z. So long as originator is certified as a CDFI when it originates the loan, the exemption to ATR is effective and unconditional. Accordingly, the originator or purchaser of such loan shall not have any liability with respect to claims to legal actions brought by borrowers based on originators failure to comply with ATR requirements.

GUIDING UNDERWRITING PRINCIPLES

There exists a significant population of Americans who have demonstrated sustained creditworthiness and the ability to accumulate substantial real estate investment capital – yet remain under-banked. Creditworthiness is demonstrated by way of responsible debt habits and repayment ability, and capital accumulation is demonstrated by way of lifelong savings, family and community contributions and home equity. Nonetheless, many remain un-financeable under Dodd-Frank's strict technical ATR income documentation restrictions due to income volatility, self-employment, non-recurring adverse circumstances, cultural influences, limited income history, inadequate income documentation or being in low-income communities.

At the same time, historical loan performance data, both Quontic's and industrywide, provide evidence that despite income documentation methodology, significant home equity contributions and favorable credit scores are demonstrative of ability-to-repay and low likelihood of default. Quontic's adaptive underwriting philosophy stems from this basic understanding and is consistent with its US Treasury designation as a CDFI and its mission to foster homeownership amongst the under-banked. Quontic's underwriting considers alternative compensating factors and documentation, deemphasizes limited or irrelevant quantitative factors, and establishes a reasonable expectation of repayment premised upon an application of the 5 C's of Credit:

Character: Refers to a borrower's reputation and track record of repaying debts, reported as credit scores. Past payment history is a strong indicator of future willingness or ability to repay debts.

Capital: The equity contribution a borrower puts toward an investment. A large contribution decreases the chance of default.

Capacity: Measures a borrower's capacity to repay a loan taking into consideration:

- Independently verified sources of employment or self-employment
- Verification of income or assets sufficient to demonstrate a reasonable ability to service debt obligations
- Availability of family support/gifts
- Ability to accumulate assets (liquid and/or property equity)
- Empirical data pertaining to historical payment histories of Quontic borrowers and borrowers throughout the US who have similar character (credit) and capital (equity contribution)

Collateral: Measure's the Bank's security for the loan.

Conditions: Loan terms (interest rate, loan term, etc.) and external conditions such as the state of the economy, cultural factors, and others.
